

And if Middle Ages were not only a chapter in a history book !
Discover the everyday life of the people of Middle Ages time in a real castle, that's what you would do at the Château Historique de Pierreclos...

Theme of the visit :

Why were built castles during Middle Ages ? How was everyday life inside ? What kind of weapons were used to fight? What about the cooking and the way people used to eat?
It is the kind of questions children would answer thanks to their guide during a funny visit, adapted to their age and knowledge.

Plus of the visit :

A professional guide used to visit with young public

Concrete explanations based on pictures and manipulations of objects by the children themselves

A descriptive form of the visit and practical informations sent to the teacher to prepare the visit in class with children to take advantage of it

A « report of end of visit » sent to the teacher, which can be given to each child after the visit to keep a trace of his journey and to help him to immerse again into the subjects approached during the visit thanks to games and various exercises (also useful support in class)
